PHOENIX.

Taylor's Waive Extradition.

The probabilities are that Phoenix has seen the last of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Z. Taylor, who have been in the limelight here for nearly two weeks or since their arrest on charges of having uttered fictitious checks in Los Angeles. After having threatened to fight extradition, both finally decided to waive all formalities and return to California. In the custody of Detective Nick Harris and Deputy Sheriff Mrs. Nick Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Taylor started for Los Angeles Thursday evening.

The decision of the Taylors to waive extradition on the very day that Governor Hunt had appointed to consider the requisition, is said to have come about after the governor had been in consultation with Louis R. Taylor, a son of the man under arrest. It is believed that the young man carried a suggestion from the governor that it might look better for the Taylors if they returned voluntarily rather than go on record as having fought extradition. It is generally believed that whatever case there may be against the young woman in the case will be dropped upon her appearance in Los Angeles.

Transportation Improvements.

Following the complete breaking off of the negotiations to sell the local street railway, the management began recently to complete its preparations for putting into effect the recent order of the Arizona Corporation commission compelling a reconstruction of a great part of the property of the company together with an improvement in the equipment and service of the public service utility.

The East Washington street line is the first to receive consideration in this connection and already a large force of men are at work tearing up the old track and installing a new one, commensurate with the demands a city the size of Phoenix makes upon an urban transportation system.

Under the commissioner's orders the track must be reconstructed on the east end clear to Eastlake park. There are also other portions of the lines that come under the ban of the Corporation Commission. The cars now in use must also be supplanted as soon as possible with up-to-date cars.

The street car company intends according to Superintendent Mitchell to increase the service on the Washington street line during the sessions of the legislature making the service at about eight minute intervals. This will allow of rapid transit between the state house and city much more effective than it is now.

Irrigation Commission.

Taking the opportunity offered by the receipt of a letter of resolutions from Graham county asking for a reclamation project there, the Phoenix board of trade in directors meeting placed itself on record favoring the appointment of an irrigation commission. It is quite likely the legislature will be asked to empower Governor Hunt to name a commission, whose duty it will be to pass preliminary judgment on reclamation and irrigation projects in this state, and to make proper recommendations on the subjects. The board argues a report from such a commission will have immensely more weight with the powers that be than the resolutions of any trade body in the land.

Certain Graham county people want a project established in that commonwealth. They got together and petitioned the Washington office of the reclamation service to put in a small project, and sent the resolutions on to the local board for indorsement. The board added waterways control to the list and indorsed the idea of the commission, which will also pass judgment on the Colorado river work under the Newlands National river control bill, when that shall have become an act.

When M. O. Eldredge comes to Phoenix he will have all arrangements made for his appearance on the lecture platform with a talk on good roads. A committee of five was appointed from the board of governors yesterday to co-operate with the good roads association of Arizona, and the subcommittee of the Hundred and Twenty-Five which is in charge of the national highway matter, the three bodies to work for the success of Eldredge's lecture.

A special committee of five will start things another "good time dinner" to the friends of the board of trade, at which things in general can be discussed.

Prescott Elopement.

One of the most sensational elopements in the history of Prescott had its climax in Phoenix with the arrival here of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Ford, both of Prescott. Before her romantic marriage Mrs. Ford was Mary Heap, daughter of Horatio Heap of the Mile-High city. The Ford and Heap families, it is known were long on the most friendly terms and indeed there was really no objection to the marrying of the couple except that it was felt by the parents of both that they had not reached that mature period in life where matrimony was advisable.

According to the best information the first discovery of the infatuation of the boy and girl for each other was when the girl's father, walking along a residential street of Prescott discovered his daughter in the act of being kissed by the young man. A stormy scene followed in which the young woman was ordered to her room and the key turned upon her and the young man told to make himself scarce as hen's teeth.

But young Ford was not to be so easily beaten. He told Ray Ford, his brother of the turn matters had taken.

"Don't you mind, Bob, old boy," Ray is said to have remarked to his brother. And then he hurried out, saddles a horse, travels down the canyons and across the plains gathering a posse of cowboys and other friends of the boy and girl.

The young woman is taken from her home without objection on her part or interference on the part of her unsuspecting parents. The party reaches a church and the wedding follows. Just as the rice is being thrown, the irate father shows up and the posse of friends keep him occupied until the couple boards the train for Phoenix. They have arrived in Phoenix all right and will be seen in the Lubin moving picture films being shown at Wigwam Saturday and Sunday afternoons and evenings. It is one of the most realistic western pictures ever shown in this city and the locale gives added interest. Scores of persons who make Prescott their home are to be seen in the picture and the street scenes are quickly recognized by any person who has ever been in the county seat of Yavapai.

Automobile Association.

A three-A organization, being the Arizona Automobile Association was formed yesterday by all but three of the automobile dealers of the city of Phoenix. By three-A is meant "siding with the American Automobile association" and at the same time the initials being the same, the name can be applied to the new state's organization. The new association will be strictly dealers in cars and accessories. Its purpose is the promotion of everything that makes the automobile business good, from the advocacy of good business methods to the exploitation of good roads, shows, tours and contests.

DOUGLAS.

Big Robbery at Nogales.

One of the largest robberies reported along the border for several months took place in Nogales when, on January 23, the residence of Joseph Carbon was entered and more than $2,000, in money, jewelry and old coins secured.

The property lost, as described in a circular, received by the city police from Sheriff W. S. McKnight, follows:

$1,000 in gold coin; two $100 bills; six $50 bills; twenty-five $20 bills; box of old coins, all denominations valued at $500; two $2.50 gold pieces;

three $3 gold pieces; four $1 gold pieces; two ladies' gold bracelets; one watch and chain; two necklaces with lockets attached; one brooch and several unlisted rings and smaller pieces of jewelry.

The robbers are thought to be heading in this direction.

Shut Off "Dope" Supply.

In order to deal with the condition of lawlessness which has recently developed in Douglas, and which is attributed by Chief Askins largely to the agency of drug fiends, two plans have been formulated, to be followed out by the police department. One will be to visit each of the pawnshops of the city every morning and examine the goods which have been received on the day previous, comparing them with lists of stolen goods. Another which has been arranged for is to have all prescriptions for morphine, cocaine, etc., filled by the local drug stores only after they have been given the official O. K. of the chief of police.

It is customary, in all of the larger cities of the country, to have the pawn shops furnish lists of goods received each day. It has not been customary to follow out this rule in Douglas, although the police have full power to require it. Instead of doing so, however, the police will visit each pawnshop every day and inspect the goods.

Chief of Police Askins has visited each of the drug stores and requested that they shall not fill prescriptions for known drug users without sending them to him for an official O. K. on the prescription. This has been agreed to, all druggists declaring themselves more than willing to aid in every way the campaign the chief has begun to rid the town of an increasingly large element of drug fiends. Not a few of the robberies of recent months can be traced to this source.

FIND MUCH LOOT WHEN PLACE IS RAIDED

(From Thursday's Daily)

The county jail building yesterday presented more of the appearance of a young and thrifty mercantile establishment than a habitation for harboring the evil inclined, as the result of the biggest clean up of stolen goods that had been known in this community for many years.

A bunch of four Mexicans named Francisco Costello, Andreas Franco, Manuel Escamillo and Feliciano Cuevas were accredited with having in their possession the variegated line of goods, that ran from a 100 pound sack of sugar to the dainty shoes of some maiden that wore a No. 2, French button of the latest make. The list of goods recovered from a place on South Granite street included a miscellaneous assortment of men's wearing apparel, with all makes of boots and shoes, cases of condensed milk, eggs, corn starch, tea, coffee and other canned "truck" required the accommodation of a wagon to handle; in short the "bill of fare" was as carefully selected as if some epicurean authority was ready to open up a stand "with all the market affords." The Home Bakery identified many of the articles, but who are owners of the miscellaneous articles not required in pastry making, will probably be learned today.

The raid that resulted in the arrest of the men was conducted by Officers C. M. Raible, John Burns, Thomas McMahon and Robert Robbins and took place at a late hour on Tuesday night. Several burglaries have been reported during the past ten days, hence the vigilance that resulted in the arrest of the quartette. They will have their hearing today before Judge McLane.

LOBO WOLF IS A MENACE TO STOCKMEN

(From Friday's Daily)

Thomas Humphrey who was in the city yesterday from Williamson Valley, states that the lobo wolf pest is occasioning considerable trouble to rangemen, these animals coming into settled localities for food, on account of the snows in the mountains adjacent and several head of cattle have been killed during the past week. Rangemen are organizing and will patrol the country in an effort to kill off these marauders that attack every class of livestock in and out of enclosed places. Such a condition was never known before.
